On Monday, August 2, 2010, Central Contracting of Norman will begin construction of the concrete foundation for the upcoming art sculpture in the center of the East Main Street Roundabout located at the intersection of Main Street, Acres Street and Carter Avenue. The art sculpture, called Indian Grass, will be installed in September 2010 by artists Juan and Patricia Navarette of Taos, New Mexico. "Indian Grass", Oklahoma's state grass, builds upon the natural environment of the City of Norman, reflecting the connection that exists between its people and place.

This is the first major project of the Norman Public Arts Board, a subsidiary of the Norman Arts Council, which was created in 2007 by the Norman City Council to promote the values of public art and expand the City's collection of art. The extensive search for this sculpture involved a selection panel of local citizens who reviewed over sixty proposals from artists throughout the United States as well as two international artists.

Funding for this sculpture and future projects is supported through voluntary monthly donations in citizen's utility bills, direct donations to the Norman Arts Council's Art in Public Places Fund and a citywide fund drive.

For additional information, please contact the Norman Arts Council, 20 E. Main Street, Norman, OK 73069 or call (405) 360-1162. For any questions regarding construction of the concrete foundation, please contact the City Public Works Department at (404)366-5453.
